

My Universe

This file will cover my universe and everything about it. As I write more about my universe (IE, the more it expands just like our own universe), I will add new info here so check back if you are lost on one of my new stories!

My vore stories take place in a world where certain humans are born with a special mutation that allows them to become "preds". Unlike many other vore universes in mine the trait is not heritable. It increases the amount of connective proteins in the extra cellular periphery of muscular, connective, and integumentary (skin) tissues. This occurs most notably in the jaw (allowing it to be unhinged), esophagus, and of course the stomach and stomach area.

While vore is for the most part illegal, it is legal in self defense and also at certain locations known as vore safe zones. These are where all people who participate in the safe zone must have signed a contract legally acknowledging the possibility that they are eaten and digested and consent to this risk. The most notable example of vore safe zones are uni-vore-sities, the colloquial name for any university that allows its students to eat others. The main one in my stories is UBHF, which is the University of BirmingHamFord, which is where most preds in England go. For outside of vore safe zones, government programs exist to allow the deceased in their wills or their families after they die to donate corpses to the government which can then redistribute the corpses to preds so they don't have to eat living prey.

In this universe there is only oral vore so no anal, cock, etc. vore, and there is no shrinking or enlarging so giantess/shrink vore does not happen. Also only humans exist in this world no anthro or furies, and humans work mostly like they do IRL so no fully functional hermaphrodites. Both males and females can become preds equally. All vore is fatal as digestion is a brutal process in this universe much like it would be if vore existed in real life. However, digestion is always what kills prey since preds have an autonomic reflex which causes them to constantly gulp down air every time they breathe so the prey inside have enough to breathe. In addition, preds, when starving, experience immense hunger pangs that cause them to double over in pain, and if they don't eat within 15 minutes or so of the onset of these hunger pangs, a process known as autophagy could begin where the body breaks itself down for energy, starting with excess fat and muscle tissues. Preds can eat normal food although they require a lot of it (usually the equivalent of a human body mass). The last thing to note is that preds have immense mental control over their digestion process. This allows them to completely halt and prevent any digestion, but once they decide intentionally to start digestion it cannot be stopped again.

The main theme of my work is of course digestion speed, with even the average being 15 minutes for complete digestion (in the western world) and the slowest digesting taking up to only an hour. In my universe the average digestion speed varies on a number of factors. First and most importantly is the circumstances and mindset of the person during the digestion. The angrier or pleased the person is, the faster the digestion while boredom, happiness, and so on decrease digestion speed. A person who is exercising has an increased metabolism and one who exercises often has an overall increased metabolism, leading to faster digestion. On the other hand, sleeping and drinking (alcohol) slows down digestion. Lastly, if a person is focusing on the digestion and intends for digestion to occur, it will happen much faster than in casual digestion. The next factor that influences a person's digestion speed is their demographics including their sex and ethnicity. Males digest prey around 2 times faster than women do. In addition, caucasians digest prey the slowest and the ethnicity which digests the fastest are East Asians (including those of Chinese and Japanese descent) who digest on average 10 times faster than caucasians.

OCs (original characters)-

John Ling

Race: Asian (East Asian/ Chinese descent)

Sex: Male

Age: 22

Height: 5' 8"

Dick size: 10"

Mass: 120 kg (all muscle)

Association: UBHF, UBHF team

Personality: John is a cool dude with an inner punk. He tries his best to maintain his friendships in spite of his pred nature but sometimes even he has to fall off the wagon!

Description: Even amongst preds John is feared due to his nature as a Chinese ethnicity male, the demographic with the fastest digestion and most nutrient requirements. Even more so, John is an athlete through and through and has developed extremely powerful and thick muscles, especially his abs, which he uses to crush prey in his stomach by increasing the pressure within so much that they spontaneously explode/explosively decompress. This helps him with instant digestion. In addition, John's metabolism is extremely strong even for an East Asian pred due to his immensely athletic lifestyle. He usually has to feed 3 times more often than his East Asian pred peers who do not follow an athletic lifestyle, and 12 times more than his average Caucasian pred peers. When I'm moderate exercise his digestion is usually around 1000 times more powerful than the world average, and it stays around there due to his even keel.

An image of John in his UBHF track uniform. His uniform shirt is very elastic so he can use it to cover his gut even when extremely expanded.