

A faun is a mix of a goat and a man. They mostly live in wood areas of Earth. They are mostly prey but they can be predators as well.

A faun can fight back against predators so they can eat them instead. Some fauns can be faster than anything, such as a bear.

They can also swallow anyone who wants to be eaten by a goat man. Fauns can eat a lot of humans. Their stomachs can have 40 humans at maximum.

Fauns are also known to eat harpys as well. It is due to having to live in the same area. The reason why they eat harpys because they think that they taste like chicken.

Fauns and centaurs are related but fauns are into eating centaurs as well. Rarely, centaurs let the fauns eat them. It is due to how friendly they are to the centaur.

The faun is a smart creature in the woods. The reason that most humans want fauns to eat them is because they want to be protected from danger. Faun's favorite prey are harpys.

Demon fauns are a subspecies of fauns that are demons and like to hang their prey before eating them. Demon fauns are into eating things that are normally predators to normal fauns. The maximum amount of prey they can eat is 1,000.

Fauns sometimes have the ability to shove prey up their anus. They do not like it when they have to swallow a beartaur, that wants to be eaten. It is mostly due to almost all beartaurs being huge.

Most human preys that are eaten by fauns wanted to be eaten by them for protection from any danger in the woods.
